Using the DSM-5® and ICD-10: The Changing Diagnosis of Mental Disorders

Objectives

- Identify the major revisions in DSM-5® to substance, mood, anxiety, and other common categories of mental disorders.
- Describe five changes in the organization of mental disorder categories in the DSM-5®.
- Discuss the diagnostic criteria for six or more new diagnoses in the DSM-5®.
- Describe the ICD and its relationship to the DSM-5® in classifying mental disorders.
- Convert a DSM-IV® diagnosis (name, code, and specifiers) to a DSM-5® diagnosis (name, code, and specifiers) and apply an ICD-10 code.
- Utilize the DSM-5® criteria to diagnose clients in case studies during the workshop.
Margaret L. Bloom, Ph.D., is a licensed psychologist and NCC, a professor of Counseling Education and Counseling Psychology at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wisconsin where she teaches psychopathology, diagnosis and assessment and the Integrated and Multidisciplinary Case Management (IMCM) seminar. Bloom has been a member of the DSM-IV™ Task Force and assisted in the development of the DSM-5™ diagnostic criteria. Prior to her move to Marquette she served on the faculties of Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois; the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee; Boston University, Boston, Massachusetts; and the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Virginia. Dr. Bloom received her B.S. degree in Nursing from Marquette University, her M.S. degree in Counseling from Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois and her Ph.D. degree in Counseling Psychology from the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee.

Dr. Bloom is an Associate Editor of the journal of Counseling Psychology and a member of the American Psychological Association, the American Counseling Association, the American Psychological Society, the Society of Counseling Psychology, the Association of Spiritual, Ethical, and Religious Values in Counseling, the Academy for Psychological Studies, and the Integrative Psychological and Spiritual Association. She is a Certified Professional Counselor and Associate Professor. She is also a registered nurse and a Licensed Psychologist. She is a licensed professional counselor, a registered nurse, and maintains a private practice.

In 2000, Dr. Bloom received the American Counseling Association’s (ACA) Award for Excellence in the Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. In 2002, she received the top award of the Institute for Professional Excellence in Psychology: the IPEC Award, and the American Psychological Association’s (APA) award for Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. Dr. Bloom has received the Excellence in Teaching Award from the University of Memphis Faculty Senate and the Excellence in Teaching Award from the Counseling Psychology Program.

Dr. Bloom is a certified member of the American Nurses Credentialing Center’s (ANCC) National Registry of Certification, a licensed psychologist and NCC, a professor of Counseling Education and Counseling Psychology at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wisconsin where she teaches psychopathology, diagnosis and assessment and the Integrated and Multidisciplinary Case Management (IMCM) seminar. Bloom has been a member of the DSM-IV™ Task Force and assisted in the development of the DSM-5™ diagnostic criteria. Prior to her move to Marquette she served on the faculties of Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois; the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee; Boston University, Boston, Massachusetts; and the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Virginia. Dr. Bloom received her B.S. degree in Nursing from Marquette University, her M.S. degree in Counseling from Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois and her Ph.D. degree in Counseling Psychology from the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee.

Dr. Bloom is an Associate Editor of the journal of Counseling Psychology and a member of the American Psychological Association, the American Counseling Association, the American Psychological Society, the Society of Counseling Psychology, the Academy for Psychological Studies, and the Integrative Psychological and Spiritual Association. She is a Certified Professional Counselor and Associate Professor. She is also a registered nurse and a Licensed Psychologist. She is a licensed professional counselor, a registered nurse, and maintains a private practice.

In 2000, Dr. Bloom received the American Counseling Association’s (ACA) Award for Excellence in the Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. In 2002, she received the top award of the Institute for Professional Excellence in Psychology: the IPEC Award, and the American Psychological Association’s (APA) award for Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. Dr. Bloom has received the Excellence in Teaching Award from the University of Memphis Faculty Senate and the Excellence in Teaching Award from the Counseling Psychology Program.

Margaret L. Bloom, Ph.D., is a licensed psychologist and NCC, a professor of Counseling Education and Counseling Psychology at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wisconsin where she teaches psychopathology, diagnosis and assessment and the Integrated and Multidisciplinary Case Management (IMCM) seminar. Bloom has been a member of the DSM-IV™ Task Force and assisted in the development of the DSM-5™ diagnostic criteria. Prior to her move to Marquette she served on the faculties of Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois; the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee; Boston University, Boston, Massachusetts; and the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Virginia. Dr. Bloom received her B.S. degree in Nursing from Marquette University, her M.S. degree in Counseling from Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois and her Ph.D. degree in Counseling Psychology from the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee.

Dr. Bloom is an Associate Editor of the journal of Counseling Psychology and a member of the American Psychological Association, the American Counseling Association, the American Psychological Society, the Society of Counseling Psychology, the Academy for Psychological Studies, and the Integrative Psychological and Spiritual Association. She is a Certified Professional Counselor and Associate Professor. She is also a registered nurse and a Licensed Psychologist. She is a licensed professional counselor, a registered nurse, and maintains a private practice.

In 2000, Dr. Bloom received the American Counseling Association’s (ACA) Award for Excellence in the Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. In 2002, she received the top award of the Institute for Professional Excellence in Psychology: the IPEC Award, and the American Psychological Association’s (APA) award for Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. Dr. Bloom has received the Excellence in Teaching Award from the University of Memphis Faculty Senate and the Excellence in Teaching Award from the Counseling Psychology Program.

Using the DSM-5® and ICD-10: The Changing Diagnosis of Mental Disorders

Margaret L. Bloom, Ph.D., is a licensed psychologist and NCC, a professor of Counseling Education and Counseling Psychology at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wisconsin where she teaches psychopathology, diagnosis and assessment and the Integrated and Multidisciplinary Case Management (IMCM) seminar. Bloom has been a member of the DSM-IV™ Task Force and assisted in the development of the DSM-5™ diagnostic criteria. Prior to her move to Marquette she served on the faculties of Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois; the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee; Boston University, Boston, Massachusetts; and the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Virginia. Dr. Bloom received her B.S. degree in Nursing from Marquette University, her M.S. degree in Counseling from Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois and her Ph.D. degree in Counseling Psychology from the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee.

Dr. Bloom is an Associate Editor of the journal of Counseling Psychology and a member of the American Psychological Association, the American Counseling Association, the American Psychological Society, the Society of Counseling Psychology, the Academy for Psychological Studies, and the Integrative Psychological and Spiritual Association. She is a Certified Professional Counselor and Associate Professor. She is also a registered nurse and a Licensed Psychologist. She is a licensed professional counselor, a registered nurse, and maintains a private practice.

In 2000, Dr. Bloom received the American Counseling Association’s (ACA) Award for Excellence in the Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. In 2002, she received the top award of the Institute for Professional Excellence in Psychology: the IPEC Award, and the American Psychological Association’s (APA) award for Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. Dr. Bloom has received the Excellence in Teaching Award from the University of Memphis Faculty Senate and the Excellence in Teaching Award from the Counseling Psychology Program.

Using the DSM-5® and ICD-10: The Changing Diagnosis of Mental Disorders

Margaret L. Bloom, Ph.D., is a licensed psychologist and NCC, a professor of Counseling Education and Counseling Psychology at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wisconsin where she teaches psychopathology, diagnosis and assessment and the Integrated and Multidisciplinary Case Management (IMCM) seminar. Bloom has been a member of the DSM-IV™ Task Force and assisted in the development of the DSM-5™ diagnostic criteria. Prior to her move to Marquette she served on the faculties of Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois; the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee; Boston University, Boston, Massachusetts; and the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Virginia. Dr. Bloom received her B.S. degree in Nursing from Marquette University, her M.S. degree in Counseling from Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois and her Ph.D. degree in Counseling Psychology from the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee.

Dr. Bloom is an Associate Editor of the journal of Counseling Psychology and a member of the American Psychological Association, the American Counseling Association, the American Psychological Society, the Society of Counseling Psychology, the Academy for Psychological Studies, and the Integrative Psychological and Spiritual Association. She is a Certified Professional Counselor and Associate Professor. She is also a registered nurse and a Licensed Psychologist. She is a licensed professional counselor, a registered nurse, and maintains a private practice.

In 2000, Dr. Bloom received the American Counseling Association’s (ACA) Award for Excellence in the Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. In 2002, she received the top award of the Institute for Professional Excellence in Psychology: the IPEC Award, and the American Psychological Association’s (APA) award for Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. Dr. Bloom has received the Excellence in Teaching Award from the University of Memphis Faculty Senate and the Excellence in Teaching Award from the Counseling Psychology Program.

Margaret L. Bloom, Ph.D., is a licensed psychologist and NCC, a professor of Counseling Education and Counseling Psychology at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wisconsin where she teaches psychopathology, diagnosis and assessment and the Integrated and Multidisciplinary Case Management (IMCM) seminar. Bloom has been a member of the DSM-IV™ Task Force and assisted in the development of the DSM-5™ diagnostic criteria. Prior to her move to Marquette she served on the faculties of Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois; the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee; Boston University, Boston, Massachusetts; and the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Virginia. Dr. Bloom received her B.S. degree in Nursing from Marquette University, her M.S. degree in Counseling from Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois and her Ph.D. degree in Counseling Psychology from the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee.

Dr. Bloom is an Associate Editor of the journal of Counseling Psychology and a member of the American Psychological Association, the American Counseling Association, the American Psychological Society, the Society of Counseling Psychology, the Academy for Psychological Studies, and the Integrative Psychological and Spiritual Association. She is a Certified Professional Counselor and Associate Professor. She is also a registered nurse and a Licensed Psychologist. She is a licensed professional counselor, a registered nurse, and maintains a private practice.

In 2000, Dr. Bloom received the American Counseling Association’s (ACA) Award for Excellence in the Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. In 2002, she received the top award of the Institute for Professional Excellence in Psychology: the IPEC Award, and the American Psychological Association’s (APA) award for Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. Dr. Bloom has received the Excellence in Teaching Award from the University of Memphis Faculty Senate and the Excellence in Teaching Award from the Counseling Psychology Program.

Margaret L. Bloom, Ph.D., is a licensed psychologist and NCC, a professor of Counseling Education and Counseling Psychology at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wisconsin where she teaches psychopathology, diagnosis and assessment and the Integrated and Multidisciplinary Case Management (IMCM) seminar. Bloom has been a member of the DSM-IV™ Task Force and assisted in the development of the DSM-5™ diagnostic criteria. Prior to her move to Marquette she served on the faculties of Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois; the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee; Boston University, Boston, Massachusetts; and the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Virginia. Dr. Bloom received her B.S. degree in Nursing from Marquette University, her M.S. degree in Counseling from Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois and her Ph.D. degree in Counseling Psychology from the University of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee.

Dr. Bloom is an Associate Editor of the journal of Counseling Psychology and a member of the American Psychological Association, the American Counseling Association, the American Psychological Society, the Society of Counseling Psychology, the Academy for Psychological Studies, and the Integrative Psychological and Spiritual Association. She is a Certified Professional Counselor and Associate Professor. She is also a registered nurse and a Licensed Psychologist. She is a licensed professional counselor, a registered nurse, and maintains a private practice.

In 2000, Dr. Bloom received the American Counseling Association’s (ACA) Award for Excellence in the Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. In 2002, she received the top award of the Institute for Professional Excellence in Psychology: the IPEC Award, and the American Psychological Association’s (APA) award for Contributions to the Field of Counseling Psychology. Dr. Bloom has received the Excellence in Teaching Award from the University of Memphis Faculty Senate and the Excellence in Teaching Award from the Counseling Psychology Program. bloom@marquette.edu