Live Webinar Schedule

(Times listed in Eastern)

8:00 Program begins

11:50-1:00 Lunch Break

4:00 Program ends

There will be two 15-min breaks (mid-morning & mid-afternoon).
Actual lunch and break start times are at the discretion of the speaker.
A more detailed schedule is available upon request.

Objectives

1. Differentiate 3 challenging components of race-based traumatic stress and how to address them.
2. Utilize clinical strategies and evidence-based assessments to identify current and intergenerational trauma, related symptoms, and potential co-morbid conditions in BIPOC teens and adults.
3. Analyze the role of microaggressions in the therapy room and how therapists perpetuate racism and support racist social structures without realizing it.
4. Apply strategies for identifying their own blind spots and become more conscious and aware of their own implicit biases.
5. Apply 3 polyvagal approaches to help clients create safety, enhance social engagement, and help BIPOC clients navigate their nervous system.
6. Apply 3 specific somatic resources that can help BIPOC clients process race-based trauma.
7. Utilize evidence-based models and strategies that empower BIPOC clients to attune to their nervous system, notice patterns of behavior, and uncover their own internal growth and resilience.

Racial and Generational Trauma Recovery

Increased hate crimes. Fear and discrimination. Police brutality and traumatic media coverage. Higher rates of mental and physical health disorders.

Just because your clients aren’t talking about racial trauma, doesn’t mean they’re not dealing with it.

It is critical that your therapeutic space instills a sense of safety and calm and agency and empowerment for BIPOC clients.

Imagine your Black, Indigenous, and people of color (BIPOC) clients leaving therapy...

...feeling like their traumatic experiences no longer drain or define them

...having gained a sense of ownership over their story

...using their trauma to help or inspire others into healthy action

Chinwé Williams, PhD, and Licensed and Board-Certified EMDR therapist has been supporting BIPOC clients with trauma recovery for over a decade. She serves the BIPOC community as a published researcher and author, consultant, educator, and a featured expert blog and media contributor. She specializes in somatically-focused approaches to teach clients how to regulate the nervous system and safely use the body for healing racial trauma.

In this live one-day webinar, Dr. Williams will go beyond cultural competency and “top-down approaches”, like CBT—because clients can’t think their way out of trauma.

- You’ll learn...
- somatic, body-based interventions to heal the nervous system and target trauma at the cellular level
 - new exercises to explore your identity and bias
 - the latest ways to support racial wellness and self-care

Don’t let therapy be another space where a BIPOC client doesn’t feel safe and heard.

Join this expert-led training to grow deeper in your connections with BIPOC clients and improve clinical outcomes.
